READ • TRY • CHECK

25 October 2026 | Edition 1.0

Welcome to your self-study slide library

1. Each role has a PowerPoint slide deck and a matching PDF. Open the PDF for easy reading; use PowerPoint for presenting or editing.
2. Read one task, try it on your own account, then check the result described on the slide.
3. Use the guide for your assigned duty. If you have several duties, read each relevant guide.

Choose a role → Read the steps → Try and check

CHECK: No classroom trainer is needed to follow the guides.

Start with your everyday work

1. Community members: browsing, accounts, contributions and AI chat.
2. Students: courses, classes, assignments and progress.
3. Teachers and lecturers: class setup, assignments, feedback and gradebooks.

CHECK: Open guide 01, 02 or 03.

If you prepare or review content

1. Uploaders: draft, attach files, record permission and submit.
2. Cultural reviewers: check accuracy, request corrections and vote independently.
3. Content editors: correct returned work. Publishers: check the final release.

04 Upload → 05 Review → 06 Edit → 07 Publish

CHECK: Open the guide matching your assigned content duty.

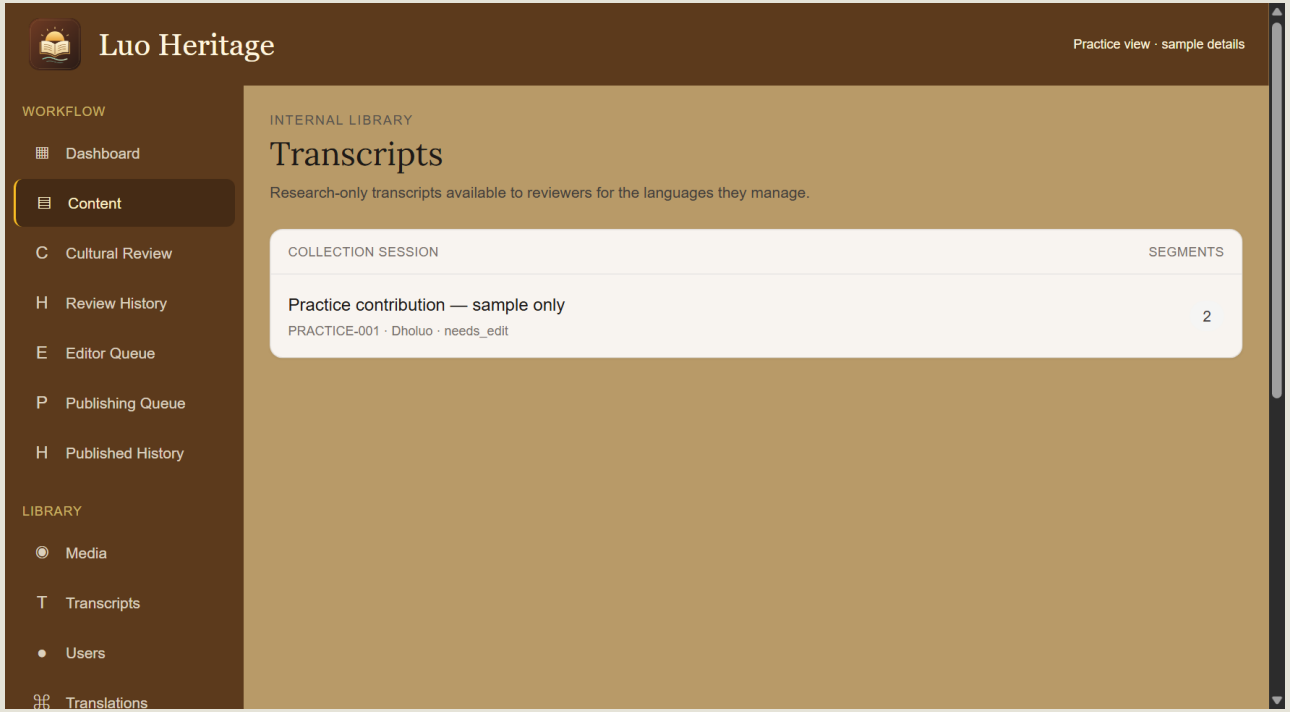

If you manage the platform

1. Language administrators: coordinate people and content in an assigned language.
2. Super Admins: oversee assigned languages and staff, within their authority.
3. Master Super Admin: institutional ownership, Super Admin authority and protected system operations.

CHECK: Open guide 08, 09 or 10. A wider menu does not grant every action.

If you use the system for research

1. Open guide 11 for public sources, internal-access requests and transcript guidance.
2. A researcher interest on your profile is not permission to read private interviews.
3. Ask the institutional custodian before exporting or reusing restricted material.

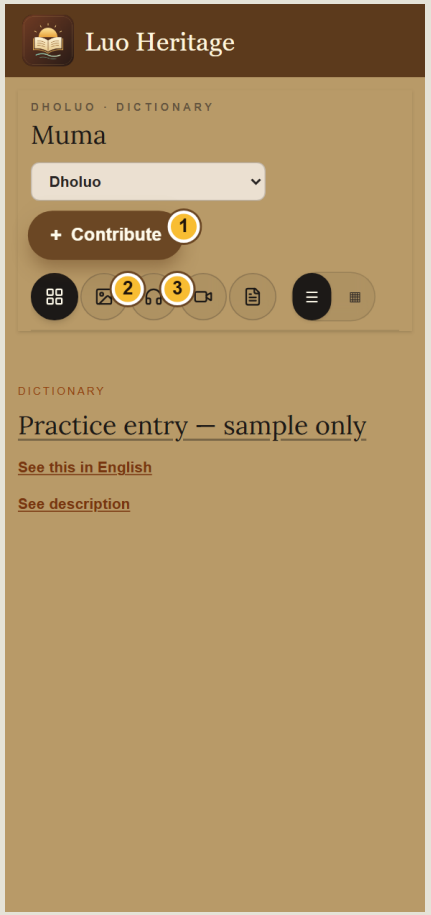

CURRENT INTERFACE • PRACTICE DETAILS

CHECK: Research follows the source’s access and reuse conditions.

About the screenshots

1. Screens are captured from the current application components using sample names and practice records.
2. They are illustrations of the interface, not evidence that an email was delivered, a record was published or a live account was created.
3. Your menu and records depend on your assigned access. Phone and computer layouts may place controls differently.

CHECK: You can recognise controls without mistaking practice details for real cultural evidence.

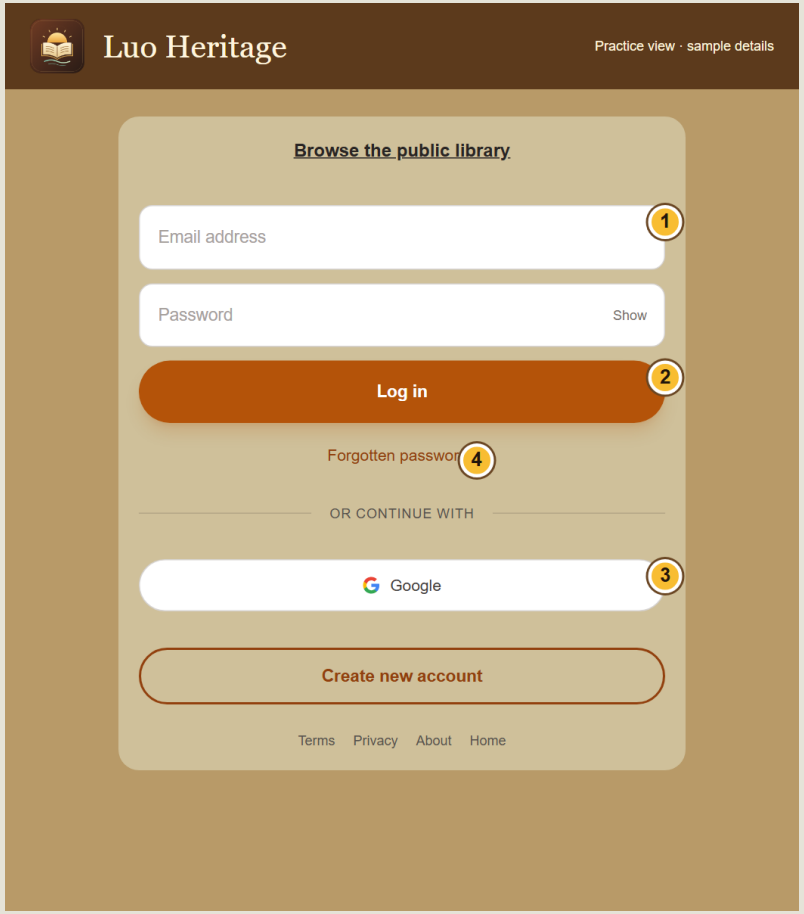

Share the right files

1. Send a person their own role’s PDF or PowerPoint. PDF copies keep the layout consistent.
2. The role decks contain their own account and recovery instructions, so they can be read independently.
3. Keep the editable sources for future updates. Review the screenshots again when the application changes.

CHECK: Distribute the guides as slides, not as a long technical manual.

Need help while studying?

1. For a missing button, check your assigned role and language with your account administrator.
2. For a failed action, note the screen, button, time and exact message. Never send your password.
3. Practise high-impact tasks only in an approved practice environment. Do not publish or delete real data to test a guide.

CHECK: Your administrator can help with a clear description of the problem.
